Thanks, Karon. Was Goddard formally asked to confirm ownership of the dam? Is there a record of that? It's hard to interpret Doug's response. He's showing a plan with plot lines that deviate from the 1969 survey referenced in the quitclaim deed he sent.

I know it's been mentioned that lot line disputes are not the jurisdiction of the conservation commission. That being the case, can an unresolved lot line dispute affect the commission's evaluation of an NOI? Or would the commission need to approve an SOC if the wetland delineations are determined to be accurate? (I intend to try make the case that they are not with the conservation commission hearing is not the right forum for the ownership question).

I'm guessing that the lot line dispute will need to be raised and resolved with either the planning board or the building department. This may be a question best directed to town counsel, but I'd like to confirm where and when the right time to raise the issue is so that I can do it properly.

Any thoughts on the letter from Pat to the DEP that they never received? I've attached it in case you didn't see it when Pat cced you on our exchange. It's contents are some of what I intend to raise at the cc hearing to question the delineations in the dam repair Nol.

Thanks again!

Todd
